

India's Forest Man

English Transcript	Tradução
India's forest man	O homem das florestas da Índia
Thirty-four years ago when he began to plant trees, no one, including him, had the slightest idea that his effort would give birth to an entire forest.	Há trinta e quatro anos, quando começou a plantar árvores, ninguém, inclusive ele, tinha a menor ideia de que seu esforço daria à luz uma floresta inteira.
It all began with a dream he had in 1979 to plant trees on barren land for small animals and birds to build their homes on the tree tops.	Tudo começou com um sonho que ele teve em 1979 de plantar árvores em terras áridas para que pequenos animais e pássaros construíssem suas casas nas copas das árvores.
Chasing his dream, Jadav Payeng, then a young lad, belonging to the Mishing tribal community in Jorhat district, in the north eastern state of Assam, began to plant trees regularly.	Perseguindo seu sonho, Jadav Payeng, então um jovem rapaz, pertencente à comunidade tribal Mishing no distrito de Jorhat, no estado de Assam, no nordeste do país, começou a plantar árvores regularmente.
Decades later, the trees have transformed into a lush forest covering 550 hectares of land, home to wild elephants, tigers, rhinos and deer.	Décadas depois, as árvores se transformaram em uma floresta exuberante que cobre 550 hectares de terra, lar de elefantes selvagens, tigres, rinocerontes e veados.
Similarly, he is growing trees on another 150 hectares of land, which is adjacent to the first forest he helped plant.	Da mesma forma, ele está cultivando árvores em outros 150 hectares de terra, que ficam ao lado da primeira floresta que ele ajudou a plantar.
In appreciation of his single handed efforts, the Assam government has named the forest he helped grow after him, as Mulai Kathoni Bari or the forest of Mulai, Payeng's pet name.	Em reconhecimento a seus esforços individuais, o governo de Assam nomeou a floresta que ele ajudou a cultivar em sua homenagem, como Mulai Kathoni Bari ou a floresta de Mulai, o apelido de Payeng.
In 2012, India's premier educational institution, the Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU) named him the 'Forest Man of India'.	Em 2012, a principal instituição educacional da Índia, a Universidade Jawaharlal Nehru (JNU), nomeou-o o 'Homem da Floresta da Índia'.
