

Live like the flowers

English Transcript	Tradução
Live like flowers	Viver como as flores
Once upon a time there was a young man who walked beside his master. He asked:	Era uma vez um jovem que caminhava ao lado do seu mestre. Ele perguntou:
"Master, how can I not get upset? Some people talk too much, others are ignorant. Some are indifferent, others are liars... I suffer from those who slander..."	"Mestre, como faço para não me aborrecer? Algumas pessoas falam demais, outras são ignorantes. Algumas são indiferentes, outras mentirosas... sofro com as que caluniam..."
"Well, live like flowers!" warned the master.	"Pois viva como as flores!", advertiu o mestre.
"What is it like to live like flowers?" asked the disciple.	"Como é viver como as flores?", perguntou o discípulo.
"Look at these flowers," continued the master, pointing to the lilies that were growing in the garden. "They are born in manure, yet they are pure and fragrant. They extract from the stinking compost everything that is useful and healthy for them, but they do not allow the sourness of the earth to stain the freshness of their petals..."	"Repare nestas flores", continuou o mestre apontando lírios que cresciam no jardim. "Elas nascem no esterco, entretanto são puras e perfumadas. Extraem do adubo malcheiroso tudo que lhes é útil e saudável, mas não permitem que o azedume da terra manche o frescor de suas pétalas..."
"It is right to worry about our own faults, but it is not wise to allow the vices of others to bother us. Their faults are theirs and not yours. If they are not yours, there is no reason to be upset. Exercise, then, the virtue to reject all the evil that comes from outside... Don't let yourself be contaminated by everything that surrounds you... Thus, you will be living like flowers!"	"É justo angustiar-se com as próprias culpas, mas não é sábio permitir que os vícios dos outros nos importunem. Os defeitos deles são deles e não seus. Se não são seus, não há razão para aborrecimento. Exercite, pois, a virtude de rejeitar todo mal que vem de fora... Não se deixe contaminar por tudo aquilo que o rodeia... Assim, você estará vivendo como as flores!"
