Bear: The Furry Guardian	Bear (Urso): O Guardião Peludo
The Miller family adopted a Great Pyrenees named "Bear."	A família Miller adotou um cão da raça Grande Pirineus chamado "Urso".
He was massive, fluffy, and incredibly lazy.	Ele era enorme, peludo e incrivelmente preguiçoso.
Bear slept 20 hours a day.	O Urso dormia 20 horas por dia.
He slept on the sofa.	Dormia no sofá.
He slept on the rug.	Dormia no tapete.
He slept in the hallway.	Dormia no corredor.
If the doorbell rang, Bear wouldn't even lift his head.	Se a campainha tocasse, o Urso nem sequer levantava a cabeça.
He would just open one eye, look at the door, and go back to sleep.	Apenas abria um olho, olhava para a porta e voltava a dormir.
Mr. Miller used to joke, "We have the worst guard dog in history. A thief could steal the TV, and Bear would just ask for a belly rub."	O Sr. Miller costumava brincar: "Temos o pior cão de guarda da história. Um ladrão poderia roubar a TV, e o Bear só pediria um carinho na barriga."
But one night, everything changed.	Mas, certa noite, tudo mudou.
It was 2:00 AM. The house was dark and silent. The whole family—mom, dad, and three children—was fast asleep upstairs.	Eram 2h da manhã. A casa estava escura e silenciosa. Toda a família — mãe, pai e três filhos — dormia profundamente no andar de cima.
Suddenly, Mr. Miller woke up. Something heavy was pressing against his chest.	De repente, o Sr. Miller acordou. Algo pesado pressionava seu peito.
It was Bear.	Era o Urso.

The dog was standing on the bed, which was strictly forbidden. He was whimpering—a high-pitched, frantic sound. He was pawing at Mr. Miller's face.	O cachorro estava em pé na cama, o que era estritamente proibido. Ele choramingava — um som agudo e frenético. Ele arranhava o rosto do Sr. Miller com a pata.
"Get down, Bear," Mr. Miller grumbled, trying to push the 100-pound dog away. "Go to sleep."	"Desce daí, Bear", resmungou o Sr. Miller, tentando afastar o cachorro de 45 quilos. "Vai dormir."
But Bear wouldn't stop. He barked—a loud, booming bark right in Mr. Miller's ear. Then, he grabbed the sleeve of Mr. Miller's pajamas with his teeth and pulled. He pulled so hard he nearly dragged Mr. Miller out of bed.	Mas Bear não parava. Ele latiu — um latido alto e estrondoso bem no ouvido do Sr. Miller. Então, agarrou a manga do pijama do Sr. Miller com os dentes e puxou. Puxou com tanta força que quase arrastou o Sr. Miller da cama.
Mr. Miller sat up, annoyed. "What is wrong with you?"	O Sr. Miller endireitou-se na cadeira, irritado. "O que há de errado com você?"
Then, he felt it. He felt dizzy. His head was throbbing. He tried to stand up, but his legs felt like jelly. He stumbled.	Então, ele sentiu. Sentiu tontura. Sua cabeça latejava. Tentou se levantar, mas suas pernas pareciam gelatina. Ele cambaleou.
He looked at his wife. She wasn't moving.	Ele olhou para a esposa. Ela não se mexia.
"Honey?" he said. She didn't answer.	"Querida?", disse ele. Ela não respondeu.
Bear ran into the hallway and barked again, looking back at Mr. Miller.	Bear correu para o corredor e latiu novamente, olhando para trás, para o Sr. Miller.
Mr. Miller realized something was terribly wrong. He staggered into the hallway. The air felt heavy. He crawled to the children's rooms. They were sleeping deeply; he couldn't wake them easily.	O Sr. Miller percebeu que algo estava terrivelmente errado. Cambaleou até o corredor. O ar parecia pesado. Arrastou-se até os quartos das crianças. Elas dormiam profundamente. Não conseguiu acordá-las facilmente.
Bear ran into the youngest daughter's room. He grabbed her blanket and pulled her onto the floor. The thud woke her up enough to cry.	Bear correu para o quarto da filha mais nova. Pegou o cobertor dela e a puxou para o chão. O baque a acordou o suficiente para que ela chorasse.
Mr. Miller realized what it was: carbon monoxide. The silent killer. The furnace was leaking a gas that couldn't be smelled or seen.	O Sr. Miller percebeu o que era: monóxido de carbono. O assassino silencioso. A fornalha estava vazando um gás que não se podia sentir o cheiro nem ver.
Adrenaline took over. Mr. Miller grabbed his wife. He shouted for the children. Bear ran from room to room, barking and nudging the kids toward the stairs.	A adrenalina tomou conta. O Sr. Miller agarrou a esposa. Gritou pelos filhos. Bear correu de um cômodo para o outro, latindo e empurrando as crianças em direção à escada.
They managed to stagger out the front door, breathing in the fresh night air. They collapsed on the lawn, gasping for breath.	Eles conseguiram cambalear para fora pela porta da frente, respirando o ar fresco da noite. Desabaram no gramado, ofegantes.
Bear stood guard over them, panting, watching the house.	O urso fazia guarda sobre eles, ofegante, observando a casa.
When the firefighters arrived, they measured the gas levels in the house. The captain shook his head. "The levels were lethal," he told Mr. Miller. "If you had stayed inside for twenty more minutes, none of you would have woken up."	Quando os bombeiros chegaram, mediram os níveis de gás na casa. O capitão balançou a cabeça. "Os níveis eram letais", disse ele ao Sr. Miller. "Se vocês tivessem ficado lá dentro por mais vinte minutos, nenhum de vocês teria acordado."
Mr. Miller looked at Bear. The big dog was already asleep on the grass, snoring loudly.	O Sr. Miller olhou para Bear. O cachorro grande já estava dormindo na grama, roncando alto.
Mr. Miller laid his head on the dog's side and	O Sr. Miller deitou a cabeça no lado do cachorro e chorou.

cried. He realized that Bear wasn't lazy. He was saving his energy for the one moment when it truly mattered. He wasn't just a pet; he was a guardian angel in a fur coat.	Ele percebeu que Bear não era preguiçoso. Ele estava guardando energia para o único momento em que realmente importava. Ele não era apenas um animal de estimação; era um anjo da guarda em um casaco de pele.
